From Hill County.

HILL COUNTY, TEXAS, May 28, 1874.
Ed Examiner:
The continued effort of the Galveston News, to slander and malign the character of Governor Coke, seconded by some few papers in the State who have followed blindly in the wake of the aforesaid paper has become disgusting and shameful, in view of the circumstances governing the whole affair of the public printing and all parties connected therewith. From the Western Stock Journal, the News copies the following extract: "A word further and we are done, we have no high opinion of the men or some of them at least, that Gov. Coke has called around him; but that he should have given the slightest countenance to the gigantic fraud as set forth by his friend Downs, both surprises and mortifies." We would say to the Mr. Western Stock Journal, before he again essays to animadvert upon the conduct of gentlemen either official or unofficial, he had best get in possession of facts concerning which he writes and not draw conclusions from the false and prejudiced statements of a paper which is simply mad, on account of its being caught at a game of bribery and thereby thwarted in its efforts by such conduct in procuring the job of public printing. The News is only attempting by its attack upon the administration to draw the public gaze from its own nefarious doings, and create a diversion in its favor. This is too plain not to be observed by the honest and independent thinking people of Texas. And until something else occurs to loosen the hold which our Governor has upon the affections of the people of Texas, the latter which will mark his course, will grow each day of his official career brighter and brighter. The Galveston News, without the proof of a single fact, which could possibly injure the character of an honest and upright man, has attempted to have its numerous readers believe that the Governor entered into a conspiracy with, or as a member of the printing board to swindle the State. This slander is as false and foul as hell itself. The Democratic Statesman, another paper which has seen fit to wage war upon the Governor in reference to this matter, has admitted its wonder and astonishment at the fact of the Houston Telegraph being able to do the printing so cheap, the latter paper having been awarded the public printing by the printing board at a sum less than sixty thousand dollars than the printing was done the previous year by these self-same papers, the News and the Statesman; the Governor, by this one transaction, saving to the State's Treasury not less than fifty or sixty thousand dollars. It is this kind of corruption the Chief Magistrate of the State is guilty of. Texans will always delight in that sort of corruption which keeps the public crib out of reach of those miserable cormorants who write editorials for pay and call them advertisements, and send their agents to Austin to buy up clerks and find out thereby the private affairs of government officials. "O, shame! where are thy blushes?"

As to his appointments, go ask those who are acquainted with his appointees, and see what their verdict is; don't condemn without first knowing what you are talking about.

The people of Texas, (as some people believe), are not so enraptured with the News and subservient to it as to follow blindly its false teachings. They are noted for their independent thinking, and though Gen. Jackson or Sam Houston were to rise from the grave unless they were true and faithful, but few followers would they find among the people of Texas. The Governor has no organ under his control and direction for the purpose of grinding out praises and laudations of his course daily and weekly, right or wrong, as has been the case with other administrations. But so long as his course of conduct is characterized by an honest effort to care for the interests of Texas, and her people guarding against corrupt intrigues and corruptionists, irrespective of party, he will find the people ever ready to come to his support, even though in doing so, they come in opposition to that mighty power in the land, the Galveston News.

Now in conclusion, we would say to those who condemn the Governor's conduct, for them to inquire particularly for facts, sift them well and if honest and disposed to award a just decision, not one solitary fault or exception can they find in the conduct of the present State executive.

THEIAN.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

OFFICE MASTER TEXAS STATE GRANGE, MARLIN, May 28, 1874.
All purchasing agents of subordinate and council Granges in the State will send their names and Postoffice address, to this office.

Deputies and Masters are required to be careful in keeping the Rituals from persons not entitled to use them.

Deputies should not leave copies with organized Granges, as they will be furnished when dispensation issues.

Deputies are required to work diligently and constantly in imparting instructions, to avoid the much confusion which has been introduced by too careless teaching.

Masters and Secretaries of subordinate Granges are earnestly requested to fill the blanks sent for crop statistics with much care and accuracy. These reports embody very valuable information, which should be cautiously and correctly furnished.

Patrons cannot be too diligent in keeping a correct statement, so as to furnish the full information desired in the reports.

Patrons, your noble order promises much good to the country, be cautious be diligent, active and unremitting, to maintain the principles and the purposes of the Order. Let no evil spirit sway you, but labor to promote the happiness and success of our agricultural people.

Wm. LANG

The News of the 29th has another extract from the San Antonio Express, the filthiest Radical sheet in Texas, and right in the same column, without a rule between, another from the Granbury Vidette. We are curious to know how the Vidette will relish this intimate association. We rather think the skilful and unscrupulous blending will not suit its taste altogether. A few doses more of the

The Frostrate State.

WHAT A NORTHERN MAN SAW IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

F. W. S., a prominent Northern merchant, has been to Columbia, and writes as follows of what he saw in that city of rings. The letter is taken from the Bridgeport, Conn., Farmer:

South Carolina is in a sad and deplorable condition. Stealing is the only thing that is flourishing. The swindling operations carried on in this State, especially in this city, by the carpet-baggers, scoundwags and negro members of the Legislature, if thoroughly exposed, would bring to light an amount of corruption that would cause Tweed and his "ring" to blush. Through it the whole State, particularly the "Cotton belt," is in nearly a bankrupt condition. Merchants cannot collect from planters, because the latter can hardly raise cotton sufficient to pay taxes.

Proceeding with a lengthy detail of how the whole machinery of the State Government is run for the robbery of the white people, this very intelligent and, we suppose, honest Northern man, who, after so long a time, is getting his eyes open to the facts of the case, concludes his letter as follows:

There are about one hundred and forty-five members of the Legislature; some twenty-five are white, the balance are black, and of these last there are forty who can neither read nor write; and with a few bad men at their head, they make good material to rob the State, enrich themselves and others. This mania for stealing at the capital is rapidly spreading all through the towns and in the country; in fact, the negroes are beginning to think that everything belongs to them, and must be taken when opportunity occurs. South Carolina has about thirty-five thousand more colored voters than white, and if this state of affairs is allowed to go on much longer, it will eventually end in a war of races. Something must be done to prevent such a calamity. And the people blame the North and the government for upholding and sanctioning this class of men, who are sucking out the very life of the State, and scattering seeds of wickedness that will bring forth bitter fruit. The theory that ignorance can govern States has proved a total failure here, and I honestly think if it was not for fear of the United States soldiers, some hanging would be done in less than a year, or men would be less than human.

We are glad, of course, that yet another of our Northern brethren has got his eyes open to an abomination and a disgrace to the American name, which, it seems to us, a blind man ought to have seen long ago. What a pity, though, that the condition of things in South Carolina, which our Northern brethren are so very slow to see, cannot be transferred for a while to States farther North!

As an eye opener, we think it would have a fine effect, and be, withal, just what our Northern brethren deserve.
